My Primary Camera: Sony A7R Camera

After owning a pro-grade Canon DSLR camera for 15 years and collecting tens of thousands of dollars worth of Canon lenses, I wanted to upgrade my photography game and wanted a mirrorless full-frame camera. After months of research, I got the Sony A7R Mark V. I will share my notes about this camera as I learn how to use it.

AI REVIEW PASSED.

Sony A7R Mark V

The Sony A7R Mark V is a high-end full-frame mirrorless camera with a powerful 61MP sensor, advanced AI-driven autofocus, and a versatile 4-axis multi-angle LCD screen, catering to professional photographers seeking exceptional image quality and performance.

Using dedicated processing, the a7R V's autofocus is greatly benefitted by more intelligent subject tracking and recognition capabilities along with the reliable hybrid AF system Alpha cameras are known for. Real-time Recognition AF works with seven different selectable target types:

Video Recording at 8K 24p and 4K 60p

Accessory VII: Using my Canon 5D Mark II Lens with Sony A7 RV

I have many lenses for my Canon 5D Mark II, and I would love to use some of them with the Sony A7R V.

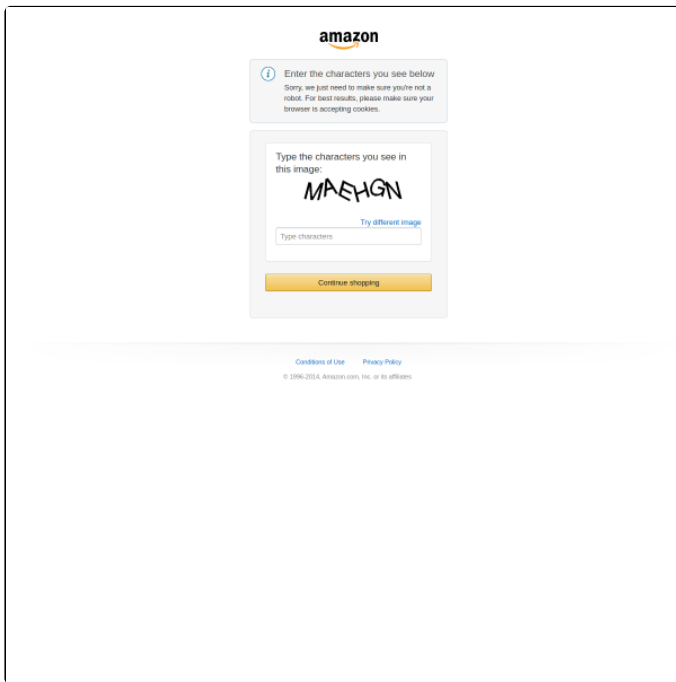

Using Sigma mount converter I can use the Canon lens with the new Sony camera. The only trade of is a small amount of loss of speed on auto focus.

Everyone, welcome the a7R V to the Sony family! Featuring the highest image quality in Alpha history, the Sony a7R V boasts a massively upgraded BIONZ XR processor and a brand-new, powerful AI processing unit for never-before-seen subject detection and tracking. This camera stays true to its Alpha R roots, but it's much more refined and adds some outrageous advancements. I was able to play around with this beast of a camera for several days, and I can tell you that it is a very worthy upgrade.

Now let's get into the nitty gritty and get nerdy. 🤓
